Log Homes Council Members Celebrate National Log Home Month

Log home enthusiasts have an opportunity to experience log home living first-hand.

(Washington, D.C.) With their long frontier history, log homes are as American as apple pie and baseball. Now this July you can learn more about this form of housing that enjoys such a rich tradition in the United States.

The Log Homes Council is celebrating National Log Home Open House Month in July. Companies that belong to the National Association of Home Builders' Log Homes Council will be hosting model home tours, log raising demonstrations, factory tours, seminars and much more.

"This July home buyers can discover everything they need to know to make their dream log home a reality," says Nicole Robinson, Log Homes Council Chair. "Many of log home owners report that merely living in a log home provides them with a sense of sanctuary and connection to Mother Nature that is calming. Coming home feels like going on vacation."

For decades, new log home owners have trusted members of the Log Homes Council to make their dream home a reality. That's because all council members must:

- Abide by a strict code of ethics
- Grade their logs and timbers by third party agencies to ensure quality
- Provide construction manuals to ensure correct construction techniques
- Sponsor scientific studies that advance log building technologies
- Provide free information to help consumers make smart choices

"When you buy from a company that belongs to the Log Homes Council, peace of mind comes standard," says Robinson. "Each company that belongs to the council has adopted policies that will protect your investment."
